Keeping up with teen slang is nearly impossible. New words are constantly being introduced, thanks to the influence of music, the internet, apps, and influencers. You may feel overwhelmed and lost when listening to your children/grandchildren speak, and this feeling only gets worse when you wade into the ways teens talk to each other online.

Use this guide as a reference for what's widely popular right now in order to translate what teens are saying. And teen slang changes fast, so we update this resource regularly—feel free to check back in!

Note: slang terms that involve explicit content or other concerning topics are printed in red.

Flex

Aura Point

6-7 = Also stylized as “67” and “6 7,” this number can serve as a comedic interruption whenever someone else mentions a number or basically anything close to the words “six” or “seven.” Its meaning is purposefully ambiguous, and the number can be used in as many situations as teens can find. A song called “Doot Doot (6 7)” by the rapper Skrilla helped the number start trending, as did American basketball star LaMelo ball, who is 6’7”. (Ex: “I got a 67 on my test!” “Bro, 6-7!”)

41 = Whereas “6-7” can be a placeholder for any age, any height, or any test score, “41” is basically just a contradiction or alternative to “6-7.” The popularity of this term began with a rap song by Blizzi Boi, in which he uses the number “41” several times.

Adulting = To do things a bona fide adult would do. “Adulting is no fun. Why do I have to give all my money to the government?!”

Aesthetic = Another word for “vibe.” “I don’t like this artist because I don’t get her aesthetic.” “I love the aesthetic of this Instagram account I just found.” Can also be used as an adjective to describe something being aesthetically pleasing. “I wish my Instagram feed was as aesthetic as hers...” “That outfit is so aesthetic.”

Ate and left no crumbs = Used when someone does an exceptional job at something. “Tamara just performed all of Bohemian Rhapsody by herself. Ate and left no crumbs.”

Aura Points = What you gain or lose from doing something cool or uncool.

Basic = A way to describe someone who lacks originality and enjoys the most mainstream and predictable things. Can be an insult, but is usually just an adjective.

BDE = Big D*** Energy. A compliment because it's a metaphor to signify that someone has the confidence of a well-endowed man, usually because they have good reason to be confident. Can apply to both men and women.

Bed rot/Rot = The act of lying in bed for hours, sometimes watching television or reading a book, but mostly just being lazy. Can represent a critique of hyperproductivity, but can also indicate poor mental health. “I’m putting my phone on do not disturb all day Saturday, I have plans to bed rot.”

BFFR/BFR/Be So FR = “Be f***** for real”, “be for real”, “be so for real.” Used as an expression of disbelief or incredulity. “I swear I saw Megan Thee Stallion in McDonald’s once.” “Dude, bffr.”

Beige flag = Somewhere between a red flag and a green flag, this refers to a behavior or personality trait that is neither positive nor negative, just a little quirky or strange. “My boyfriend’s beige flag is that he always sleeps with his shirt on backwards.”

Bestie = Short for best friend, can be used sincerely or sarcastically.

Biblically accurate = Originating from art depicting “biblically accurate angels” (such as in Ezekiel and Revelation, with depictions of several sets of wings, multiple faces, and hundreds of eyes), this phrase is now used to refer to anything characterized by an uncanny, alarming, and/or horrifying appearance. “I made my mom a biblically accurate angel for our Christmas tree, but she yelled at me because it was too scary.”

Big = A word that adds emphasis in multiple contexts. (Big mad: being extremely mad about something; big sad: really sad; big brain: someone/ something really smart.)

Blueprint = Used when someone did something so well that they became the standard by which everyone else does it. “Every boy band these days is trying to be One Direction. They really are the blueprint.”

Body = An objectifying way to refer to someone you’ve been sexually intimate with. People refer to their “body count” when listing people they’ve slept with, and use the phrase “that’s a body” to sexualize certain behaviors, even if they’re not necessarily sexual. “He made you a four-hour-long Spotify playlist for your road trip? That’s a body.”

Boo = One’s significant other.

Boo’d (or boooed) up = To be in a romantic relationship.

Boomer/Okay boomer = A way to dismiss an older person who is criticizing a young person on a topic the teen doesn't think they understand. Also jokingly used to refer to anyone who references out-of-date memes or media. "My grandpa told me to make a down payment on a house even though I work at Old Navy. Okay, boomer."

Boi = Another way of spelling "boy" through text or on social media.

Era

Brain rot = Content that is uninspired internet slop, or the act of watching said content.

Breadcrumbs = a form of romantic manipulation where somebody sporadically gives attention to another person to keep them interested without intending any commitment. Also called Hansel and Gretelling.

Bussin' = Really, really good, usually used for food. Used twice in a row if the food is really spectacular. "Those fries look bussin'!" "Oh they are BUSSIN' bussin'!"

Canon/Headcanon = The actual plot of a book, movie, or show (canon) vs ideas people have that they want to be canon (headcanon). "My headcanon is that Thor really likes cats." "You can't tell me Percy Jackson doesn't have ADHD; it's literally canon!"

Cancel = To remove someone or something out of your life due to them being problematic. Can often be used humorously. "I canceled that guy from Tinder. It wasn't working out." "You haven't watched The Summer I Turned Pretty finale yet? Canceled!"

Cap/No cap = Lying, or not lying. "I didn't even study for that test and I got an A, no cap."

Catch feels = To develop romantic feelings for someone. Popularized by "Feels" by Calvin Harris ft. Katy Perry, Pharrell Williams, & Big Sean.

Catch these hands = Means "to fight" (e.g. "My girlfriend is way prettier than yours," "You boutta catch these hands").

Catfish = Someone who pretends to be someone they're not on social media, either for dating or sexual purposes.

Caught in 4k = To catch someone in the act, usually online, with proof. Similar to having "receipts."

CEO of = Being really talented at something. “Mark is the CEO of turning in his homework late.”

Chat = A way of referring to a group of people. Originated from live streamers asking their chat questions, “Chat, was that the wrong move?” It can also be used to reference ChatGPT.

Cheugy = Cringey or awkward, specifically used by Gen Z in reference to trends from the early/mid 2000s. Often used as an insult toward those who are Millennials/Gen X. “You’re still wearing skinny jeans? That’s so cheugy.”

Chopped = Being unattractive or undesirable. Can sometimes also refer to getting hung out to dry in one way or another. “I am having such a bad hair day. I am so chopped.”

Clock/clocking = To notice or recognize something. Often used to call somebody out or to highlight a lack of awareness about something. “I totally clocked her lying to me.”

Clout = Having a great social influence or following, and being popular due to your social media or general social presence.

core/coded = Sharing traits or having similarity with something else. “Omg this small town is so Gilmore Girls coded” or “Your top is so early 2000s-core.”

Cooked = Being extremely tired, overwhelmed, or close to exhaustion. Note the difference between this and “let her/him cook,” which has a positive association.

Crash out = To do something dangerous or reckless that you might regret because you aren’t feeling emotionally stable. “My crush left me on read, I’m about to crash out.”

Cringey = Cringe-worthy, awkward.

Cursed = Something having bad luck/vibes associated with it. “I keep getting such low scores on my PSAT. I’m cursed.”

Curve = To reject someone romantically or sexually.

Dead/dying = When something is so funny, you can’t handle it. “Oh my gosh that TikTok, I’m dead.”

Deada** = Straight up, for real, no joke.

Delulu = Shorthand for “delusional,” used to call out someone in a humorous way for choosing to reject reality in favor of a more interesting/appealing interpretation of events. “Did you hear what the guy at Chipotle said to me? I think it was love at first sight.” “He just said ‘have a nice day,’ I think he says that to every customer. You are completely delulu.”

DTF = Down to f***.

Doing the most = Being over the top.

Done = To be completely over a task, person, emotion, or situation.

Dragged = To embarrass or mock somebody.

Eat/ate = A derivation of “ate and left no crumbs,” eat/ate can be used both as a shorthand compliment (“That dress absolutely eats”) and a way to refer to something that is a more cool, glamorous, elevated version of something else (“I love the Met Gala, it’s like Halloween costumes if they ate”). They can also be found as one-word comments on social media posts indicating a positive and approving reaction (“Did you see Maisie Williams’ bleached eyebrows? Ate”).

Emo = Feeling emotional; usually sad. “The ending of La La Land has me so emo.”

Era = Popularized by Taylor Swift’s shifts in style between her albums, “era” refers to a specific period in someone’s life where they’re focusing on a certain aesthetic or lifestyle. These can be as simple or complex as is desired; examples may include “villain era,” “healing era,” and “not caring about what people think, just focusing on my own life and being content with what I have era.”

Facts = Used to mean that you are in agreement with something. “Battlefield 6 is better than Black Ops 7.” “Facts.”

Fam = Short for family, used to denote one’s actual family or one’s closest friends.

Finsta = Fake Instagram. Usually it’s someone’s second, less-public Instagram account, often used to be more real and raw than on one’s primary account. Can also be used to lurk on someone in a more low-key way.

Fit = In America, “fit” is short for outfit. (“Girl I love your fit!”) In England, this word means someone who’s really attractive (“That guy is fit”).

FR = For real.

Canon

FOMO = Fear Of Missing Out. Many teens feel this because of social media’s ability to highlight everyone else’s activities. Antonym: JOMO (Joy Of Missing Out, i.e. finding joy in one’s ability to commit to and enjoy one thing at a time.)

FWB = Friends with benefits. This is an undefined sexual relationship that’s generally considered to be more serious than just hooking up, but less serious than an actual committed relationship. This usually happens because one person doesn’t want to commit, while the other hopes he/she will.

Gassing = To hype someone up. “I’m always gassing up my girlfriend so she knows she looks cute.”

GD = God D***. “It’s so gd annoying when...”

Ghost = To stop responding to someone’s texts, messages, posts, etc., effectively disappearing from their digital world.

Girl dinner = Refers to the occasionally strange collections of food girls find themselves putting together for a cooking-free meal. These range from the charming and curated (like an artfully prepared charcuterie board) to the downright unhealthy, like leftover french fries, a piece of cheese, and half an energy bar.

Girl math = Refers to the sometimes strange, sometimes silly, and often relatable ways that women describe seeing their finances. The phrase is something of an inside joke in women both online and off, but has also been used derogatively to suggest that all women are bad with money. “If I paid for the concert tickets six months ago, I’ve had enough paydays since then that it might as well be free.” “That is some girl math.”

Glazing = Overly hyping somebody up.

Glow-up = When someone becomes more attractive, usually over a short period of time. “Oh my gosh, Ethan had such a glow-up over the summer, he’s so cute now!”

Go off = Giving someone permission to rant about something or someone they’re mad about. “She was so rude. Go off!”

GOAT = Greatest Of All Time.

Basic Hoco

Gyatt = Shorthand for g****n, originating on Twitch as a way to respond to seeing an attractive woman. The term has morphed into a noun referring to said women, particularly their backsides.

Hits different = Something that affects you in a bigger way than other things. "This sandwich hits different!"

Highkey = Obvious or definite. "I highkey want that shirt." The antonym is lowkey, or something that is less obvious or definite.

Hoco = Short for Homecoming.

Hop off = Mind your own business.

Hooking up = Has various levels of meaning. Could refer to anything from making out to having sex.

Hunty = Combination of "honey" and "c***." It originated in the drag queen community as a slight insult, but it's starting to be used amongst groups of girls as a term of endearment.

Ick/The ick = Used mostly by young women to refer to something a boy does that turns them off but doesn't necessarily make sense. "I thought about him singing Rihanna in the shower and it honestly gave me the ick." "Close-up magic is such an ick for me."

I fear = A way to preface saying something very bluntly, "I fear you aren't ready to take this exam," or "I fear that color is not working on you."

IGL = In game life. This term is used by gamers to talk about their gaming lives.

IYKWIM = If you know what I mean.

IYKYK = If you know you know.

Juul/Juuling = Vaping. Juul is a brand of e-cigarette that's very popular with teenagers, despite their claims that they aren't trying to market to teens.

Karen = A word for a woman, most often middle-aged and white, who causes a scene in public. "This lady in front of me was screaming at the Starbucks barista for twenty minutes because he gave her sugar-free vanilla syrup instead of regular. What a Karen."

Keep it 100 = Be true to yourself and stick to your values (short for "Keep it 100% real"). Made mainstream by The Bachelorette's Rachel Lindsay.

Bussin' Mood

KYS = Kill yourself.

Let's get this bread = A play on “dough” being slang for money, it means to work hard and succeed. It went viral in October 2018 and has become a battlecry or a motivation to succeed. There are also many variants and subsequent memes.

Let them cook = A phrase of encouragement used when someone is mid-action to suggest that their result will be surprising and impressive. It's mostly used positively, and can also be translated into the affirmative past-tense. “They really cooked in the 4th quarter!”

Like my recent = Using one social media platform to tell one's followers to like his/her most recent post on another social media platform. Often seen as desperate. Synonyms: LB (like back), FB (follow back).

Live/living = When something is so incredible, it's finally making you “live.” This is the best vacation ever, I'm living.”

Lock in = A way to implore somebody to focus on something, especially if they are distracted. “Bro, you need to stop talking and lock in on your essay!”

Looksmaxxing = A term arising from the incel (involuntary celibate) community on the internet, which refers to becoming more attractive by improving hygiene, hair, and fashion sense. “I've been looksmaxxing lately, I think it's paying off.” “You do look better, but I think it's just because you're washing your hair now.”

Low key = A warning that someone doesn't want everyone to know what they're saying. “Keep this low key.” Could also be used to mean “kind of,” as in “I low key love this song.” Antonym: High key (i.e. not trying to hide it; straight up proclaiming it to the world).

Main character/main character syndrome/main character energy = When someone either is, thinks they are, or behaves as though they are the most interesting or central person in a situation due to how they dress, speak, or behave. “I'm wearing these cow-print pants to the grocery store. Main character energy.”

Menty b = Shorthand for “mental breakdown.” Popularized by the British dating show Love Island, and often said in a British accent. “If he doesn't text me back I'm going to have a full menty b.”

Narrative = Something you would not like to take part in. “I would v much like to be excluded from this narrative.” Popularized by Taylor Swift in response to Kanye West and Kim Kardashian.

Ohio = Used to describe something weird. (Although to be clear, we at Axis think there is nothing wrong with the state of Ohio.)

Oof = What you say when you don't really know what to say in response to someone.

OTP = One True Pairing. Used to describe a relationship you are very invested in, or believe should happen. "I don't care that they're from different TV shows, they're my OTP!" (Similar to "endgame.")

Period = Affirming something. "I'm gonna wear a dress today." "Period!"

Pick-me girl = A girl who is overly seeking attention and approval from guys, often by distinguishing herself from "other girls."

Poggers = An expression of excitement or that you think something is really cool. Originated as slang for a certain emoji on Twitch, mostly used by gamers.

POV = "Point of view," originally used for a certain type of story-telling TikTok in which the creator was playing a character, now jokingly used to refer to a situation that stands out to you. "POV you get telekinesis when you turn 18." "POV you left your homework until the night before and now you don't have time to sleep."

Pressed = Being upset about something. "She's acting like our argument didn't even happen. I'm pressed."

Preppy = Once referring to a style evocative of preparatory school (think popped collars and cable-knit sweaters), the preppy style now includes neon colors (particularly pink and yellow), elaborate iced Starbucks drinks, extensive skin care routines with trendy product lines, and hinges heavily on wealth and brand-awareness. On TikTok, #preppy also often includes a genre of "mean girl" videos designed to shame people for wearing off-brand clothes, having messy or natural hair, and "looking poor."

Put on blast = To share embarrassing details about somebody publicly.

Pulling/pulled = Getting romantic attention/partnership from someone. "Woah, did you see who hepulled for prom?"

Receipts = Proof of something (like text screenshots).

Rent free = When something occupies space in your thoughts. "I don't even like that song but it lives rent free in my head."

Slaps

RIP/RIP me = Used to express sadness or to say something sucks. Comes from “Rest in Peace” but is pronounced as it’s spelled. “I got an F on my paper, rip me.”

Rizz = Comes from “charisma,” but refers to specifically sexual attractiveness or charm. “I got Joel’s number this morning, I’ve got him drooling.” “Unbelievable rizz.”

RN = Right now.

Roman Empire = Originating in a trend where women discovered that many men think about the Roman Empire more than you’d expect, the term has become shorthand for any topic that someone thinks about often for no particular reason. “I think about the Radium Girls at least twice a week, they’re my Roman Empire.”

Say less = A way of saying “I understand.” You’re so on board with what’s being said that you don’t need more information. “Girls’ night with ice cream and rom coms? Say less.”

Salty = Jealous or upset.

Sending me = Making you laugh, as in, sending you right over the edge of hilarity.

Ship = Short for “relationship.” Used to endorse/support a romantic coupling, even one that’s not reality. “I ship Ron and Hermione.” “I see a ship developing!”

Shook = To be completely surprised, scared, or caught off guard.

Sigma = A term that originally referred to an unbothered male who plays by his own rules (i.e. not an alpha male or a beta male, but a sigma male). “Sigma” has expanded to also be used as a filler, nonsense word to inject into a phrase. “What the sigma?” simply means, “That’s surprising!”

Simp = A man who prides himself with “chivalry” in hopes of getting sexual gratification from women. He’s over the top without the girl giving much in return.

Sip tea = Mind one’s own business. Usually means you don’t want to get involved in the drama, but you have no problem watching it from the sidelines.

Sis = It’s literally an abbreviation for “sister,” but can also be used as a term of familiarity or as a filler word.

Skibidi = A nonsense word that can mean cool, silly, or dumb; a reference to the popular YouTube series “Skibidi Toilet.”

Slay = An expression of approval, usually of a person’s appearance or actions. “Kaley’s corset top is an absolute slay.” “I feel like Bennett got really confident over the summer, he’s totally slaying now.”

Sleep on = To be unaware of something's greatness. "You gotta quit sleeping on this breakfast burrito place bro, it's fire."

Slim thick/thicc = This is the "ideal" body type in today's culture. It's a girl with an hourglass figure: tiny waist and flat tummy, but bigger boobs, butt, and thighs.

Smacks = Something that is really good, often used to describe food. "This Chik-Fil-A smacks!"

SMH = Shaking my head.

TBH = To be honest.

TFW = That feeling when. "TFW you accidentally spill your Venti Frap all over your car."

Thicc = Used to describe a woman who is attractive, typically because she has curves in all the "right" places. Can be used jokingly about other things, like food or pets.

Thirsty = When someone is desperate for another person. Often refers to one's sexual appetite or desire to gain attention on social media.

Thirst trap = A sexually explicit or suggestive photograph, video, or message posted on social media that incites others to comment/DM with their interest/attraction.

Touch grass = A way of calling attention to someone who's been online so long they're losing touch with reality. "I just cried because I saw a video of the Mars rover singing Happy Birthday to itself. I need to go touch grass."

Tweakin = Saying or doing something that's off or doesn't seem to make sense, thus causing an overreaction. "My mom was tweakin on me when I missed curfew last night." Comes from the behavior exhibited by someone under the influence of drugs.

Unalive = Suicide. Videos or comments that reference suicide will often get taken down or removed, so this word was created as a way around that.

Understood the assignment = Used when someone is doing really well at something, exceeding expectations or making a statement. "Look at Natalie on the dance floor! Sis understood the assignment."

-ussy = Comes from the word p***y, added to refer to anything with a hole in it, or anything the user thinks would be funny.

V = Very. "I'm v excited to binge my fav Netflix show."

Brain Rot

Vibe check = A standard of "vibes" someone may or may not pass. Often used as a joke to justify why you don't like someone, using nitpicky critiques. "He thinks frogs are gross. Immediately fails the vibe check."

Weird flex but ok = A sassy or sarcastic response to someone showing off or bragging online. Also used humorously.

Clout

Wig = Basically a shorter version of "wig snatched," mostly used in appraisal of something or someone, especially of celebrities. It's as if you're so blown away by something that your wig literally falls off.

Wig snatched = To be amazed, blown away, caught off guard, or shook by something. Originates from drag queen culture. Often used in reference to an attractive person.

Wild/Wylin'/ Wildin' = A synonym for "shocking." If used to describe a person, it can mean "hilarious" or "weird" as well. "YOU JUST MET KENDRICK LAMAR THAT'S SO WILD." "She wylin'."

Zombie = A romantic interest who ghosts you, then returns.

As you can see, there's a lot to keep track of!

We hope knowing these terms helps you discern when your teens are just engaged in harmless fun and when they're in need of intervention. One caveat: teenagers are all about authenticity.

They can smell inauthenticity a mile away. So carefully consider the choice to add these words to your vocabulary. Your teens may think it's cool or funny that you're using them... or they may find it totally uncool and therefore be embarrassed by your use of them.
